Henry County residents survive wreck

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Pleasureville residents riding in a Dodge pickup truck only received minor injuries after a July 5 wreck in Oldham County killed two teens and left a third seriously injured from the other vehicle, according to a police report.

Oldham County Police say that two teens died after the Saturday wreck at Highway 53 and Old Sligo Road July 5 at approximately 4:30 p.m., according to a news release.

When police arrived they located a two-vehicle collision between a Ford passenger car, driven by Brianna Zambrzycki, 20, of La Grange, and a full-size Dodge pickup with five passengers, according to the news release.

Two passengers in the Ford were deceased at the scene of the collision.

Police identified the two teens killed as Ben Clifford, 18, from La Grange, and Haley O'Kelley, 19, of Jeffersonville, Ind.

The driver of the Ford passenger car was transported to University of Louisville Hospital with serious injuries.

The Dodge pickup truck, driven by Michael Baker of Pleasureville, contained a total of five persons, two adults and three juveniles, police say. All of the occupants in the pickup were transported to regional hospitals but none appeared to have any serious injuries.

Passengers in the Dodge included Stephanie Noel, also from Pleasureville, and two female and one male juveniles.

The cause of the collision remains under investigation.

If anyone should have any information in this case, or any other case, please contact the Oldham County Police Department at (502) 222.1300 or www.oldhamcountypolice.com.

Dog's mothering instincts take over

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Around A-1 Service Center in New Castle, Zoey — a 4-year-old Pomeranian/golden retriever — is considered a savior after she recently adopted two scrawny baby raccoons.

"She's a hero," Jeanette Mertz said about the Morgan family's pet. "She takes care of them."

For the time being, the approximately five-week-old raccoons will live with Zoey until they get old enough to survive without the milk the dog gives them, said Eileen Morgan and son George, who own the garage.

The mother raccoon left the two cubs behind in a boat on another person's property. When approached by humans, the adult raccoon ran away.

The Morgans took in the cubs, and that's when Zoey's adopted the two little animals herself.

"I showed them to her and she immediately starting taking care of them on her own with no hesitation," George said.

The dog will snuggle with the raccoons and groom them. At their young age, they haven't done too much walking yet.

Zoey lost a litter of puppies and still had milk, Eileen explained. Her motherly instinct must have taken over.

"I've raised one on a bottle before," Eileen said. "I've never raised one with a dog, but she's doing a great job. She's a good little momma."

Besides nursing the cubs, Zoey feels protective of them — shown by barking at people who come around.

The raccoons have put on weight, so they appear to be doing well, George said.

Eileen raised raccoons in the past, so she knows about their habits.

New Henry Couny Fair pageant added this year

BY WILL PHILLIPS
news@hclocal.com

Fair goers may have noticed a new offering on the program this year with the Sensational Pageant.

Designed specifically for individuals with special needs, the new pageant made its Henry County debut this year.

Pageant Director Renee Jeffries came up with the idea for the new event, with the help of Pageant Coordinator Camie Hagan. She got the idea while judging a special needs pageant elsewhere in the state.

Jeffries said that she saw the other pageant and thought that it was an amazing opportunity to recognize special needs individuals in Henry County. The pageant was needed because locals need to include special needs individuals and make them part of our community.

The contestants seemed "so free," she recalled. "You just cried because they're happy-go-lucky and free with their life."

Jeffries hoped to bring some of that attitude to the Henry County pageants.

And beyond the new event at the fair, Jeffries said that she hopes the Sensational Pageant can help raise awareness for the struggles of special needs people in a more general sense. For instance, she said, if someone needs a ramp, community members need to be able to build one.

This is not the first time that someone has felt a need to raise awareness for handicapped

Shelter finds more homes for animals

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

The Henry Trimble Animal Shelter helps more dogs get rescued than it has to put down, according to information from Henry County Animal Control Officer Dan Flinkfelt.

Staff, volunteers and foster homes cooperate and work hard to find shelter animals forever homes with just such a goal in mind — to rescue all the animals they can, he explained.

By state standards, an animal shelter with a euthanasia rate of 25 to 35 percent is acceptable, but Flinkfelt and his staff felt that they needed to do better.

They have been working to be a "no-kill" shelter by having a euthanasia rate of less than 7 percent. Flinkfelt said for the last year the rate of animals put down for the local shelter fell to only 4.7 percent, or a total of 48.

He attributed 23 of those to aggressive animals that attacked livestock or were involved in biting cases. Another 13 were hit by cars and could not be saved.

With last year's total of 129 animals being put down, or about 19 percent of the shelter's animals, this year's figures fell to less than half that, he said.

"Animal control has changed from the past where it was go out with a net and catch the animal and bring them back to the shelter," Flinkfelt said. "We have to go out and get them but that's only half the battle — the other part is getting them out of the shelter alive."

Henry County's animal control officers go home at the end of their shifts and continue to look at animal rescue's websites, network with rescues and post photos to the shelter's Facebook page in order to save more lives.

Animal control officers now work on learning all the things that make it easier to place the animal. Flinkfelt said, for example, learning about the breed helps because a dog that's bred to chase and capture may not be great to live with farm animals.

Animal control officers also need to understand what the public wants to find in an animal and educate them on what would be the best fit.

a great Dane, for example. Sedentary people should know that Jack Russell terriers are typically hyper dogs.

Staff works with dedicated volunteers in order to make sure the rescues happen. For example, Joan Lacey of Pleasureville will take turns driving a rescue transport to Chicago, when it's Henry County's turn in cooperation with other localities.

The shelter bought a new trailer in order to do those transports.

Some rescue runs can take along three or four rescues from Henry County, but sometimes its many more. Shelters in the region combine to send the truck every two weeks, and it can contain dozens of pets to be rescued.

Rescue groups from across the country will help save dogs — it could be the boxer rescue out of Frankfort, but Flinkfelt said that the shelter recently sent two hound dogs to Cape Cod, joking the animals would now live near the traditional home of the Kennedy political dynasty.

The furthest adoption came from Alaska, where the interested party found information about the dog online and paid out of their own pocket to transport the animal across the country a couple years ago. Flinkfelt said that's the power of the Internet as a rescue tool.

Workers and volunteers also take animals around to special events like Campbellsburg Day, Relay for Life and even the races at the Kentucky Speedway to get attention for them and find them homes.

The shelter's website is http://htshelter.rescueme.org has information about animals available for adoption.

grapes," she said. "They wash all their food. They like eggs…"

"They crawl around and they like to get somewhere and hide when they sleep at night like under the couch," George said. "They're starting to climb everywhere too."

The Morgans also understand that they will eventually have to separate Zoey from the cubs, maternal bond or no.

"I know we'll have to let them go," Eileen said. "If we let them go into the wild right now, they're too young, they wouldn't make it."

In the past when Eileen released raccoons, she would start with taking them outside more and more, so their instincts return.

"They lived in the barn for a long time," she recalled about two raccoons about 10 years ago. "We played with them in the yard — you know, introducing them back into the wild."

Meanwhile, Eileen expects the raccoons will continue to treat Zoey as their mother until they grow up and can make it on their own.

individuals. Earlier this year, a group of seniors at Henry County High School made their senior service project Handicapped Awareness in an effort to educate the public about the needs of our community's handicapped.

Hagan echoed Jeffries' feelings. "Working with children with special needs has really opened my eyes and made me realize how much I wanted to give back to these children in our community. We spend all of our time teaching children with special needs how to adapt to society and all of its 'norms' and my hopes for this pageant was to be…praise for just being themselves."

In the end, the Sensational Pageant had three contestants in its first year, as Abbey Carter, Brynnlee Craig and Ally Morehead took the stage. Jeffries hopes that it will continue to grow and that its growth will allow them to help others.

"[The pageant] is so heartfelt and genuine," Jeffries said. "They love to entertain."

Hey Henry County, they're talking about you

Are you one of those people whose ears burn when others mention you in conversation? Does that same weird sensation extend to the times when you hear somebody talking about your locality?

In my case, somebody mentioning my birthplace of Evansville, Ind., can still perk up my ears, even after 20 years of being gone.

Of course, many times when they talk about my hometown, it's often headlines that could include the words "unhealthiest city" or "tears down [blank] historic building." (Never far from my thoughts as I watch TV is my theory that Evansville serves as the real life model for the dysfunctional but hilarious town of Pawnee on "Parks and Recreation.")

CHRIS brooke
Editor

But other places I've known garner attention for more upbeat reasons. Case in point: Henry County's recent mention on the Value Penguin website.

The techies on valuepenguin.com looked at unemployment rates from counties across the Bluegrass State from 2012 and 2013 and declared the top 10 fastest growing economies in Kentucky. (See http://www.valuepenguin.com/kentucky-fastest-growing-local-economies.)

Much of their crunched data led them to conclude that areas outside of Cincinnati — Boone, Campbell and Pendleton — had the most activity, unsurprisingly.

Still, Henry County had experienced progress that impressed the website wonks.

"A county of 15,416 citizens that sits about an hour northeast of downtown Louisville, Henry County finishes seventh in our study of Kentucky areas with the fastest economic growth," they wrote. "There are 262 more people with jobs in Henry County than there were in 2012… a 21.5 percent reduction in the number of unemployed."

Put that way, the impact would seem sizeable and significant, indeed.

The article even has a picture of a New Castle mural and a quote from Chamber Director Pat Wallace about economic development and the high quality of life here.

It's a shame that www.valuepenguin.com bases the study on only one statistic. I can hear the pundits on radio talk shows questioning the validity of the unemployment figures, since people can slip off when benefits run out at the end without ever getting an actual job.

However, Henry County does have several healthy employers in industry with smaller businesses enthusiastically setting out their wares in shops along the cities' Main Streets, while at the same time the localities here have recently drawn investment for new bank branches and fast food franchises.

Even if unemployment isn't as strong a measure as the good folks at valuepenguin.com may believe, the article may still herald good things for the community.

After all, being mentioned in the same reverent tones as the big metro areas with the economies that chug right along as bedroom communities has got to be better than being ignored.

Being seen as doing better than more than 90 percent of other localities in Kentucky may turn a few heads, hopefully.

Like the saying goes, "There's no such thing as bad publicity."

Maybe this will become a trend for Henry County. Wouldn't it be nice if the county's name could be on the lips of more informational sources and with more frequency in this informational age?

I bet Henry County people could get accustomed to the sensation of blood rushing to their ears that happens when others talk about you.

Letter to the Editor

PRESIDENT'S ORDERS DON'T SIT WELL

A recent Letter to the Editor extolled the virtues of an unproven Democratic Party Senatorial candidate, while bashing her opponent.

At this point I believe it is important to state I am a registered Democrat, union member, and former union lobbyist. Union lobbyists and Republicans don't normally agree on anything, so why would I take issue with a letter bashing Republicans and elevating Democrats?

Simply put, this Democrat is afraid of "tyranny of the majority." Since 2009 we have had an Executive Branch of government that believes it can do as it pleases. Just what are citizens, who didn't vote for the "I've got a pen" President, to do?

While other Presidents have used Executive Orders more often, the breadth of this President's orders (some are not even called that, he just does it) are unsurpassed. Every time he does not get his way he threatens to "bypass Congress."

Somehow, the current occupant of the White House is under the mistaken impression that he is more important than the Legislative Branch. We did not elect a King, or a Dictator, we elected a President.

The founders of this country had lived under tyranny. They, wisely, set up a system of checks and balances to prevent one person from wielding absolute power. Our current President seems to view this system of government, and our Constitution, as an impediment to his power.

Duh, it's supposed to be!

The President seems to forget he won the election with 51.1 percent of the vote, not 100 percent.

Personally, I will continue to vote for Democratic Party candidates in Henry County elections. On the national scene I will vote for anyone except Democratic Party candidates.

We saw what happened when the President had Democratic Party control of both Houses of Congress; a hastily prepared, and terribly flawed, healthcare bill was arrogantly passed by a one-sided government.

So hurray for the "Guardians of Gridlock," as they were called by the writer of the recent letter. The "guardians" are doing exactly what they are supposed to do; they are protecting the rights of the 48.9 percent of us who did not vote for President Obama.

— Fleet Smith, Campbellsburg

Woodworker builds new Smithfield cabinet business

BY WILL PHILLIPS
news@hclocal.com

Greg Gephart and his wife Cathy have only lived in Henry County since April and already they're making their presence known as entrepreneurs.

Gephart is opening his own woodworking business, Cabinets & More, and hopes to contribute to the community of Smithfield, where they live.

The Gepharts moved to Smithfield from Michigan earlier this year to be closer to their grandchildren, who live in LaGrange. Before moving to the area, they operated a bed and breakfast while Greg did cabinetry on the side. He's had a passion for woodworking since he was young.

"My love for cabinetry really developed from my grandfather," he said. "He made cabinets and violins."

Although Gephart said he doesn't make violins, he has been making cabinets for 30 years and hopes to establish a successful business in a town that hasn't seen much new commerce in recent years.

Gephart said he hopes that his business can help keep the community going. "There's life, and with that life, joy. Creativity. It's supporting the local economy, too."

Although the business is still in the early stages of getting his business off the ground, Gephart said he is "ready to start running."

Cabinetry is more than just his business, it's his passion. "I enjoy the work because I can be creative and help the customer get a quality piece that's going to serve them for a long time and give them what they need."

As far as the work itself, Gephart said that he offers a product that is more affordable and more reliable than many competitors.

Regarding his work building kitchens, Gephart said that he uses space in such a way that he doesn't waste any and provides the most storage. He accomplishes this by making drawers deeper, taking them all the way to the floor, using slide out cabinets that fit in small spaces and by not leaving gaps between cabinets.

Gephart also said that he can work with numerous types of wood and will work with the customer to find what they want at a price they can afford.

In addition, he hopes that he and his family can become productive members of the Henry County community.

"Henry County is a beautiful county," he said. "I grew up…out in the country and I've always liked the country life. My wife and I are both enjoying it here very much. We really like the setting, the surroundings. The people have been very friendly to us and we feel right at home here in Kentucky."

'Church needs more tattoos,' pastor says

BY WILL PHILLIPS
news@hclocal.com

Turners Station Baptist Church has a new pastor.

Eric Wren, a seminary student who hails from Berea, took over the position of full-time pastor in March after serving as an interim since October.

Wren is coming from another church and taking a pay cut to be the head pastor for Turners Station. He said he felt God was leading him to the small country church and he hopes he can help improve the community in Henry County. He feels that part of that is growing the church.

"To me, it's about getting back to the basics," Wren said. "There's some really good people there who had been there for a really long time and they want to see the church do well and survive."

Part of that is reaching the youth, he thinks.

"The church needs more tattoos," Wren said. He explained that he thinks that the church needs to be able to reach and appeal to a younger generation in order to thrive. Wren said that he hopes his past will make him relatable for younger people in the church.

Wren was attending Cumberland College on a football scholarship when he was injured. After losing his scholarship, he found himself hitchhiking across the country for two years, eventually landing in Washington. After awhile, he completed his bachelor's degree at Southern Oregon University.

"After that, it was pretty much drugs and alcohol," Wren said. "I have a history of drugs and alcohol. A near death experience with an overdose kind of woke me up and said, 'you've been living the wrong way. You're alive today because God has something else for you to do.' That day, I laid on the bed in the hospital and I said, you know, I gave it my best and this is where I ended up. And you're giving me a second chance and I'm gonna spend the rest of my life doing for you."

Wren went on to say that he didn't care what he was called to do. "I don't care if I sweep parking lots. If Turners Station is the first and the last church I ever pastor in my entire life, that's fine. As long as I'm doing what He wants me to do."

For the moment, he's focusing his energy on expanding the ministry at Turners Station Baptist. Next year, Wren said that he is planning to have a Vacation Bible School.

Already, the church is donating money to missionaries through the Henry County Baptist Association and working on getting a budget for the church together. In addition to this, he is working on improving and updating the physical church as well, including painting the building and putting up signs.

Wren said he hopes to continue to improve and grow as a pastor. "I want to be the pastor people know, " he said.

Kicking their way through the county

BY WILL PHILLIPS
news@hclocal.com

You may have seen the County Kickers at a recent festival or event in Henry County.

The dance group has grown quickly since Brenda Brown started it eight years ago.

Tara Aldridge, who has been with the group since the beginning, said that she joined because she wanted to teach the line dances that she knew, as well as have fun and exercise.

The group performs line dances, primarily to country music, but also to occasional Elvis songs. According to Aldridge, they travel around to various Henry County festivals, such as Campbellsburg Day and Pleasureville Day and were at the New Castle Patriotic Festival. They also travel to Carroll County on the first Friday of each month to perform. As Aldridge says, they'll "go about anywhere."

Aldridge said that she thinks the group provides an important service here in Henry County. "It gets people together," she said. "[It brings together] people from all over the county. It's really like a family atmosphere. Everyone laughs and gets along."

She also stressed that they offer a kid-friendly environment and that children can either join in the dances or just sit and watch. Aldridge said that it allows people to come and dance without having to pay for a babysitter.

The County Kickers offer lessons on Monday and Thursday in the 4-H building in New Castle. From 6-7 p.m. is the beginner lesson, with an advanced lesson following from 7-8.

"We love to dance," Aldridge said. "That's what we do it for."

For more information, call Tara Aldridge at 502-930-1276.

Berry Center adds former UK ag dean to board of directors

Scott Smith, a longtime leader in agriculture and agricultural education in Kentucky, has joined the board of directors of The Berry Center in New Castle. Dr. Smith, a native of central New York, was educated at Cornell University and Michigan State University, where he received his Ph.D. in soil economy.

"Scott Smith has been a respected friend and valued ally of mine for many years," said Mary Berry, president of the board and executive director of The Berry Center. "We are grateful for his willingness to help The Berry Center bridge the gap between conventional and entrepreneurial agriculture in our home state."

At the University of Kentucky, Dr. Smith held multiple leadership positions, most notably Dean of the College of Agriculture from 2001-2013. For 16 months in 2005-2006, he held a dual appointment as Provost of the university. In addtion to serving as an academic dean, Dr. Smith was administrative head of the university's far-reaching and nationally acclaimed Land-Grant programs, including the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station.

In his 12 years as dean, undergraduate enrollment in the college more than doubled, research funding increased, and the local foundations of extension were reinforced. Programs in equine, sustainable agriculture and food systems, natural resources/environmental sciences, and community and economic development were begun or expanded.

The Berry Center was created to bring focus, knowledge and cohesiveness to the work of changing our ruinous contemporary industrial agriculture system into a culture and system that uses nature as the standard, accepts no permanent damage to the ecosphere and takes into consideration human health in local communities. The Berry Center seeks to advance the objectives and celebrate the achievements of author and farmer Wendell Berry; his father, laywer and farmer John M. Berry Sr.; and his brother, state senator and lawyer John M. Berry Jr.

The board of directors also consists of Den Berry, vice president; Kate Boyer, treasurer; Christina Lee Brown; Sarah Fritschner and Bonnie Cecil.

Troopers' hike to raise memorial funds

A former Kentucky State Police Post 5 commander will lead a fundraising effort to build a memorial that will honor all troopers who currently serve and those who gave the ultimate sacrifice with their lives, according to a KSP news release.

KSP Commissioner Rodney Brewer, who formerly commanded the Campbellsburg post, will hike the Grand Canyon from rim to rim Aug. 22 – 24. He's asking supporters to donate one dollar to 'The Trooper Project' for the effort.

This effort includes a seven-and-a-half foot tall bronze statue of a trooper at the new KSP Training Academy at Frankfort.

For more information, visit the website at www.TheTrooperProject.com. Contributions can be made through The Trooper Project website.

I believe...I doubt...I'm okay

MICHAEL*duncan*
Pastor, Eminence Baptist Church

"You sure do have a lot of doubts for a man who is supposed to be a preacher."

I never knew if the man who said that was upset with me, surprised, or trying to give me a nudge toward not pursuing ministry. Perhaps he was trying to do all three.

It was in 1974, and I was preaching a revival near Hardinsburg, Kentucky, at a church pastored by one of my seminary friends.

I don't remember what I said to get the man's response, but I have often wondered if it were my doubts that bothered him or if my doubts had stirred up his own.

My doubts used to bother me. They haven't for a long time. Doubts are what they are. I've never gone looking for doubts; they just rise to the surface of my mind.

Is the Jesus story really true? Did Jesus really rise from the dead? Is Jesus really the Son of God? Was Mary really impregnated by God and not her soon-to-be husband?

Those questions (doubts) and hundreds more have been and are part of my pilgrimage of faith. Once such questions/doubts were a bother—a bother which I tried desperately to resolve by finding proof.

Today doubts still arise, though not so much about the big stuff—who Jesus was and is and what he asks of us. I've settled the major issues.

I believe Jesus was/is the Son of God. I believe he died on a cross and that he arose from the dead. I believe life in all its fullness is offered to those who embrace Jesus as Lord. I believe that embracing him as Lord will often lead to hardship, but that even in the hardship life shall be full.

Today I find myself at peace with my doubts, but it is not because I can prove all I believe. It is because I have put my trust in Jesus as revealed to us in the Gospels and his Spirit's abiding presence. My belief is a matter of faith.

Has my faith overcome all the doubts? No, not if by "overcoming" one means that there are no more doubts. Doubts arise often. When they do, I cling to what I know . . . I cling to Jesus.

Perhaps the difference is in how I respond to the doubts today versus how I did as a young man. As a younger man, I sought to silence the doubts by trying harder to believe and by searching for greater proof.

Today, I submit my doubts to my faith. I allow the doubts to push me forward in my quest for better understanding. When such fails to happen, I throw the doubts back toward God, and I cling to what I know/believe—that which is at the core of my faith.

What is at the core of my faith? God is the Creator behind all that is. Jesus was/is God Incarnate—dwelling among us, once in bodily form and always through his spiritual presence. God is love.

Apart from communion—prayer and daily living—with God, I am unmoored and adrift without meaning. I am a better man for having embraced Jesus and his teachings than I would ever be apart from having done so.

So to doubts, I say, "Arise. Throw your best punch. Your best may occasionally rattle me; but nothing you throw my way can shake the unshakeable portion of my faith—I am of God...God abides with me...I shall return to God.

Eminence Independent School District
Middle /High Schools
Announces its policy for Free and Reduced Price Meals for students under the NATIONAL SCHOOL LUNCH AND BREAKFAST PROGRAMS

Any interested person may review a copy of the policy by contacting;
Jeanetta Gilkison School, Nutrition Director
254 W. Broadway Eminence, Ky. 40019
502-845-5427

Household size and income criteria will be used to determine eligibility. Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown may be eligible for Free or Reduced Price Meals. An application cannot be approved unless it contains complete eligibility information. Once approved, meal benefits are good for an entire year. You need not notify the organization of changes in income and household size.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for Free or Reduced Price Meals, households must complete the application and return it to the school. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application will be used for the purpose of determining eligibility and may be verified at any time during the school year. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year.

Households that receive SNAP or KTAP are required to list on the application only the child's name, SNAP / KTAP case number, and signature of adult household member.

Foster children will receive benefits based on information submitted on the household application or information received from an appropriate agency.

Household with children who are considered migrants, homeless, or runaway should contact the district liaison, Alethea Coffee at 502-845-5427 Ext. 4082.

For the purpose of determining household size, deployed military members are considered a part of the household. Families should include the names of the deployed service members on their application. Report only that portion of the deployed service member's income made available to them or on their behalf to the family. Additionally, a housing allowance that is part of the Military Housing Privatization Initiative is not to be included as income.

All other households must provide the following information listed on the application:

• Total household income listed by gross amount received, type of income (e.g., wages, child support, etc.) and how often the income is received by each household member;
• Names of all household members;
• Signature of an adult household member certifying the information provided is correct; and
• The last four digits of the social security number of the adult signing the application or the word "NONE" for this household member if he or she does not have a social security number.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the school should be contacted. Such changes may make the student eligible for reduced price or free meals.

Under the provisions of the Free and Reduced Price meal policy, Jeanetta Gilkison, School Nutrition Director 502-845-5427 Ext. 2402, will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent or guardian is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he or she may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If the parent wishes to make a formal appeal, he or she may make a request either orally or in writing to Shannon Treece M/H School Principle 502-845-5427.

In accordance with the Sponsor's disclosure agreement, the information on the Free and Reduced Price Meal application may be used by the school system in determining eligibility for other educational programs.

To determine annual income:
• If you receive the income every week, multiply the total gross income by 52.
• If you receive the income every two weeks, multiply the total gross income by 26.
• If you receive the income twice a month, multiply the total gross income by 24.
• If you receive the income monthly, multiply the total gross income by 12.

Remember: The total income before taxes, social security, health benefits, union dues, or other deductions must be reported.

Ray, Mertz in softball tourney

Shelby Ray, daughter of Robbie and Denise Miskell of Port Royal and Savannah Mertz, daughter of Steve and Peggy Mertz of Eminence competed in the "Kings Island College Showcase" in Milford, Ohio the weekend of June 28-29.

They competed in the 16U division, which had 24 teams from across the United States. Shelby's team, Louisville Select, represented girls from five different school districts and placed eighth in the tournament. Shelby has racked up 19 RBIs so far this season for the Select.

Savannah's team, Kentucky Landsharks, represented girls from nine different school districts in Central Kentucky and were runner-ups in the tournament.

Savannah's defensive plays at shortstop were essential in holding the opponents to only 18 runs in seven games compared to the Landsharks 70 runs scored.

Hadden wins at Old Silo

Alex Hadden continued his domination of the 11-12 year-old division of the Mussleman-Dunne Junior golf tour with an even-par 36 to win by five strokes at Old Silo Golf Course in Mt. Sterling on July 3.

Hadden's win gives him 1,950 points in the player of the year standings, 290 points better than Hudson Hummel of Louisville who is in second place with one more event played than Hadden.

YOUTH CATFISH TOURNAMENT

The Henry County Rod and Gun Club held their annual Youth Fishing Tournament on Saturday, June 21. More than 50 children of all ages were on hand to "catch the big ones." Skill levels ranged from "never having fished before" to "just about ready to turn pro and hit the circuit".

Results:

Boy's Winners:
Biggest Fish:
Michael Brown
Most Fish Caught:
Jaxon Scriber
Most Total Pounds Caught: Hunter Chipman

Girl's Winners:
Biggest Fish:
Carrie Booth
Most Fish Caught:
Jenna Rabourn
Most Total Pounds Caught: Alissa Chipman

Every child who participated was presented with a trophy. After the tournament every child was provided lunch. The tournament was paid for entirely by the Henry County Rod and Gun Club and sponsors. It offers a great opportunity to get our youth outdoors.

The Henry County Rod and Gun club is celebrating its 60th anniversary this year with special activities. The Rod & Gun Club is located on Sunnyside Road, Smithfield. For membership information contact: Ron Kidwell at 502/845-7256 straight birdies to more than erase the double bogey and eventually got to 2-under after fifteen holes.

When she saw her dad after the third birdie all he had to say to her was, "See, I told ya."

Two bogeys and a par on the final three holes left Peyton with another even par 72 and a 17-stroke margin over her closest competitor.

Peyton, who will be a senior at Henry County High School this fall, celebrated her win by verbally committing to University of South Alabama golf coach T.J. Jackson.

"Ever since spring break when I came down here for a visit, I pretty much knew that was where I wanted to go," Peyton said. "I love the location. It's only an hour from Gulf Shores. I love the campus. It's beautiful and I really like Coach Jackson. We really hit it off."

When asked what characteristics Jackson had that made her want to play for him, Peyton said, "He knows what he is doing but he's not too intense. He sort of reminds me of granddad (Lady Cat golf coach Willie Peyton)."

minutes when fouls began to add up and the Lady Bearcats pulled away at the foul line for a 10-point win.

"Because women's basketball was so new, it took a while for people to get used to it and I think it helped that we did so well in the tournament and that game," Price said. "It was an exciting game and even though we didn't win, we felt the support from everyone because of how well we played."

Price credits her high school coaches, Paula Martin and Tonya Dillon with helping her to become an accomplished player.

"Paula Martin had a big influence on me because of her work ethic and the work ethic she instilled in me," Price said. "It is why I was able to get a scholarship.

"You have to have a mentor who can look at you as an athlete and pull from you what they see to get the most out of you."

"Because of Paula Martin, I realized that athletics was the way that I was going to make it to college so she had a big influence on me," she continued. Paula and Tonya went to Western Kentucky so that really influenced me to go there."

vious squads.

He did receive some criticism for speaking out before the tournament about how little of a chance we had at winning the whole tournament. He was just playing the coaching game of managing expectations for his team. I don't blame him for that.

On the other hand, he promised a new more attacking style for this team but it sure didn't look like it in this tournament. Maybe in four more years there will be enough talent to change to that style and I hope that's true, but we have a long history of being just a cut below the major teams of the world and I don't see it changing that quickly.

I don't want to appear to be denigrating this national team. I loved their spirit and work ethic. I loved that they found a way to survive and advance. I loved the way they never gave up even when it seemed hopeless.

I will remember this team for those qualities. But I will never remember them as the team that took a huge step forward for U.S. soccer.

And unless Klinsmann is a miracle worker, I don't see it happening in four more years.

Shari Price: Henry County's Ironwoman

SUBMITTED

Shari Price finishing the Boulder, Colorado Ironman 70.3 mile relay. Price rode 56 miles and ran 13.1 while a teammate swam 1.2 miles. Price said it was her proudest accomplishment as an adult athlete.

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

Shari Price is arguably the best female athlete that Henry County High School has ever produced. The Campbellsburg native has a list of athletic accomplishments that makes it hard to refute that claim.

In basketball from 1974 to 1978 she was a four-time all-conference and all-district, two-time all regional, two-time honorable mention all-state and two time all-American player.

She was named to the Kentucky East-West All-Star game and was a key contributor on the Kentucky team in the Kentucky-Indiana All-Star series.

In track she qualified in 12 different events over four years for the state meet and had two third-place finishes. She won the Kentucky Junior Olympics 100-yard dash and held school records in the 220-yard dash, 440-yard relay and 880-yard medley relay.

Price played collegiately for Western Kentucky University for three seasons before transferring to Bellarmine University for her final season.

During her time at WKU Price was named OVC player of the week once and made the freshman All-OVC team. She later made the All-OVC team and was the MVP of the OVC tournament.

Price then did something that is unheard of in today's college basketball climate. She transferred to a smaller school in the midst of a successful athletic career for academic reasons.

At Bellarmine, Price started her senior season for the Knights and then worked as a graduate assistant coach for the team in 1983 as she finished up her degree in radiology.

As an adult Price took up distance running and ran in, "all the Derby Festival races for about 12 years."

But Price says she takes the most pride in an endurance race that combined cycling and running.

"I would say that I am most proud of finishing the 2011 Boulder Ironman 70.3 mile relay," she said. "Biking 56 miles, getting off the bike and running 13.1 miles was a great challenge to prepare for and a great feeling when finishing. I had a teammate that did the swimming portion."

After graduating, Price worked for a physician and dermatologist in Louisville for seven years.

For the last 23 years she has worked for Baptist Healthcare in various positions. She now holds the post of information services director for both the LaGrange and Louisville hospitals.

When asked what she remembers most about her high school playing days, Price said, "We were one of the early teams that played full court. We were kind of at the beginning of the modern era for women's basketball."

Price remembers that Trimble County was the team's biggest rival in those early days and beating them was a highlight of her high school career. The Lady Cats came close many times to beating the Lady Raiders but could never get over the hump until the Regional tournament in her senior season when Henry County won a 39-36 squeaker to become the first and only Lady Cat team to reach the regional final.

"For the women, Trimble was always our biggest rival and it was always fun to play them," Price said. "When you go through four years and you're always close against a tough team like that, it's like, 'We finally did it'. It was pretty exciting."

The Lady Cats lost in the regional final to a very talented Anderson County team that beat them badly twice in the regular season. In that final game Price scored 24 points and the team used tough person-to-person defense to stay close until the closing MacKenzie Peyton traveled to Birmingham, Alabama last week to compete in the Birmingham Junior Open golf tournament on June 30 and July 1.

Peyton shot an even par 72 on the first day to lead by a whopping nine strokes going into the final round.

Peyton started the second day a little wobbly when she double-bogeyed the second hole.

"I started that hole with an awesome drive but I pulled out my hybrid and used it even though I knew I probably shouldn't and I hit into the water," Peyton said. "Then I took my drop and skulled the next shot.

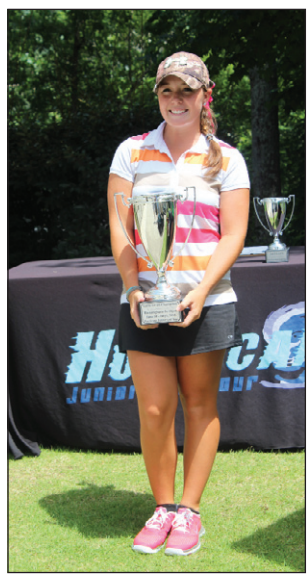

"I got really mad but I got over it quickly and decided that I was going to get on a roll."

Peyton did just that as she made four consecutive pars.

"I was playing good but I couldn't get anything to drop," Peyton said. "My dad told me not to worry about it, that they would start going in, and then I hit a putt and then another putt and then another."

Howard was great; USA, not so much

sports@hclocal.com

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

Tim Howard, the United States National Team goalkeeper, gave one of the great performances in the history of the World Cup in the team's 2-1 loss against Belgium on July 1.

It doesn't say a lot for the rest of the team that the goalkeeper had to make a mind-boggling 16 saves and we still lost 2-1.

Howard made saves of every description. He stopped high shots with his long reach and quick reflexes, he made low, diving and sliding saves with his hands and his feet and he made brave saves charging at onrushing Belgians and taking shots in the chest. Yet the team still conceded two goals.

The defensive line has taken a lot of heat over their performance in the World Cup and they should take some of the blame. They sometimes were disorganized and a step slow against the counter-attack.

But the blame must be shared by the midfielders who could not keep the ball for any amount of time before either booting it forward in the "hit and hope" manner or giving it away in midfield. Giving the ball away in midfield puts a lot of pressure on the back line. They are on their own when that happens.

With Jozy Altidore going down in the first game of the tournament, the U.S. did not have a viable option up front other than moving Clint Dempsey forward to try and take up the slack. Michael Bradley, who had looked like a world-class player during the run-up to the Cup, had a mediocre tournament – at best.

In short the United States soccer team was lucky to reach the knockout stage.

What they had in their favor was Howard, Jermaine Jones, Dempsey and a good team spirit.

Many people saw this year's team as a big improvement over previous national teams but I didn't see it that way. In 2002, we made it to the quarterfinals and even four years ago we had a slightly better record with a win and two draws. In fact, you could argue that we were one or two bad refereeing decisions from going back to the quarterfinals then.

This year we were somewhat lucky to beat Ghana in the first game and Portugal was not the team that people thought it would be coming into the tournament. Only hard work, a defensive mindset and Howard kept the Germany game from being a one-sided affair. The same could be said for the Belgium game.

I read a lot on-line about how great a job Jurgen Klinsmann has done with this team and how much we improved and changed our style from previous years, but I just didn't see it.

When push came to shove, we just bunkered down and relied on the same approach as we always have; play tenaciously, clear the ball forward whenever possible and hope someone in a white jersey gets on the end of it.

I guess I'm still a little upset that Klinsmann left Landon Donovan off the roster. We could have used him when Altidore went down. And the problems we have controlling the ball are not his fault, at least not yet. It will take time to develop players with the skill to keep possession for longer than two or three passes and fortunately for Klinsmann, the U.S. fan base seems willing to give him that time.

But I think it's unfair to previous coaches to give him unquestioned loyalty when this team did not show any real improvement from pre-
